

AOSP Awards
ASIA AND OCEANIA SOCIETY FOR PHOTOBIOLOGY (AOSP)
is now calling for nomination of AOSP Awards in 2019.

March 22, 2019

The AOSP Award Selection Committee
Chair: Yoshitaka Fukada
The University of Tokyo, Japan

Dear Sir/Madam,

We are pleased to inform you that the AOSP is now calling for nominations for the AOSP Awards in 2019. The Awards are in three categories: for senior scientists who have outstanding contributions in this field, for scientists carrying top-level research on the active list, and for notable young researchers. The Awardees will be commended at the 9th Asia and Oceania Conference on Photobiology (AOCP) held in China, 2019.

We would like to invite you to nominate candidates for each Award or apply by yourself using the Nomination Form found in the AOSP web site (<http://aosp.umin.jp/awards.html>), filling all information. Please send the Nomination Form with up to 2 sheets with a brief statement of the nominee's achievements to the e-mail addresses of chair of the selection committee, Prof. Yoshitaka Fukada, and the AOSP President, Prof. Phun Bum Park, by May 1st, 2019.

- 1) AOSP Award for Distinguished Contribution to Photobiology and AOSP, two awardees.
- 2) AOSP Award, two awardees on the active list who have carried out frontier, world top-level research on photobiology.
- 3) AOSP Award for Young Scientist, two awardees less than 45 years old, who are doing promising research on photobiology.

Thank you very much for your kind cooperation and excellent nominations in advance.

Yours sincerely,

Phun Bum Park
President of AOSP
e-mail: pbpark@suwon.ac.kr

Yoshitaka Fukada
Chair of the selection committee
sfukada@mail.ecc.u-tokyo.ac.jp